Millions of Chickens Killed in 5-Alarm Fire at Farina Farms Inc. in Illinois, One of Nation's Largest Free-Range Egg Facilities (VIDEO)

GP thegatewaypundit.com/2024/05/millions-chickens-killed-5-alarm-fire-farina-farms/

May. 30, 2024 7:40 pm

Massive fire at a chicken farm in Marion County, Illinois.

A massive fire broke out at Farina Farms Inc. in Marion County, Illinois, on Wednesday night, resulting in the deaths of millions of chickens.

The farm is one of the largest free-range egg facilities in the country.

The fire, which began around 6:30 p.m. along Highway 37, quickly escalated into a 5-alarm fire, requiring the intervention of at least 20 different fire departments from surrounding areas, according to WAND TV.

Described as "humongous" by Marion County Sheriff Kevin Cripps, the fire engulfed multiple buildings spanning 200-300 yards in length.

The smoke was so dense that it was visible on FOX 2's Power Doppler radar, reaching altitudes between 13,000 and 15,000 feet and could be seen for miles around, WGN9 reported.

"The fire at the Chicken Farm south of Farina is so hot it is actually producing a rare type of cloud over it. It's called a "pyrocumulus cloud." They form over large fires (typically wildfires) due to the intense, upward vertical motion of air cooling and condensing as it moves higher into the sky," Meteorologist Jacob Dickey wrote on Facebook.

"If fires burn hot enough, they can create clouds that produce lighting and rain, called pyrocumulonimbus clouds. That probably isn't the case in Farina, but the fire is being spotted on radar between 12,000 to 15,000 feet high!" he added.

Screenshot: Meteorologist Jacob Dickey/Facebook

The Beckemeyer Volunteer Fire Department alone transported nearly 30,000 gallons of water over a distance of 45 miles to assist in the firefighting efforts, according to Chief Luke Baker.

"You can imagine the amount of water and manpower that was being used," Baker commented. "Requests like this are made by MABAS (Mutual Aid Box Alarm System) to bring resources in from different areas so as not to deplete a whole county's fire departments in one place. All in all, it was a massive effort by these first responders to bring it under control."

The cause of the fire remained unknown. Fortunately, no injuries were reported, but the impact on the local economy and food supply is expected to be significant.

WATCH:

Another angle of Chicken Farm on fire in Farina, IL! pic.twitter.com/QCHcm0GIPT

— Southern Illinois Fire Incidents (@SouthernILFire) May 30, 2024

"We're monitoring developments regarding last night's devastating fire at Farina Farms in Marion County, just on the other side of our district line. Thanks to the swift and courageous action of first responders, it appears there were no injuries," said Rep. Mike Bost (R-IL).

We're monitoring developments regarding last night's devastating fire at Farina Farms in Marion County, just on the other side of our district line. Thanks to the swift and courageous action of first responders, it appears there were no injuries.https://t.co/At54ev6ImF

- Rep. Mike Bost (@RepBost) May 30, 2024

Prayers for the families that work at the chicken farms at Farina. Hundreds of people in the area will be affected. Emergency crews worked diligently throughout the night. Thank you Nicole Williams for the picture. pic.twitter.com/ZnO6Bie9tE

— Darren Bailey (@DarrenBaileyIL) May 30, 2024

Another chicken farm burns to the ground in Farina Illinois. pic.twitter.com/yT23a4VpET

— Ultra MAGA Dean (@dean_mays11) May 30, 2024

This disaster comes amid a devastating outbreak of bird flu that is already decimating bird populations.

Over 4 million chickens in Iowa will need to be culled after the detection of highly pathogenic bird flu at a major egg farm, the state announced on Tuesday.

Read more:

Governor Signs Disaster Proclamation as Officials Order Killing of 4.2 Million Chickens